

Why Choose Fine Art?

Fine Art gives you the opportunity to work to a range of briefs. It allows for development in painting, drawing, sculpture, installations, ICT and printmaking as well as developing personal interests through a range of materials, mediums, techniques and sizes. You can learn both digital and traditional drawing skills.

Choose Fine Art as an option and you will have the chance to visit other cities in the UK to study the work of historical and contemporary fine artists. You will also be able to work with local artists and display your work throughout the local community.

At Alun School,
our experienced teaching team provide expert guidance and tuition in 5 weekly lessons.

In addition, Art and Design studios and an ICT suite will be available for independent work.

Art and Design - Fine Art

Assessment Information

A Level Units

AS Unit 1 - Personal Creative Enquiry - non-exam assessment that makes up 40% of qualification. This consists of a practical project/portfolio and outcome/s.

A2 Unit 2 - Personal Investigation - non-exam assessment that makes up 36% of qualification. This consists of a practical project/portfolio and outcome/s and a written element of 1000 words.

A2 Unit 3 - Externally Set Assignment - non-exam assessment that makes up 24% of qualification. You will be provided with a series of visual and written stimuli. One stimuli is to be selected and you will produce preparatory work in response to this leading up to a 15 hour period of sustained focus work which will be done under supervised conditions.

Entry Requirements

You should have achieved a grade C or above in GCSE Art and Design or a design-related subject.

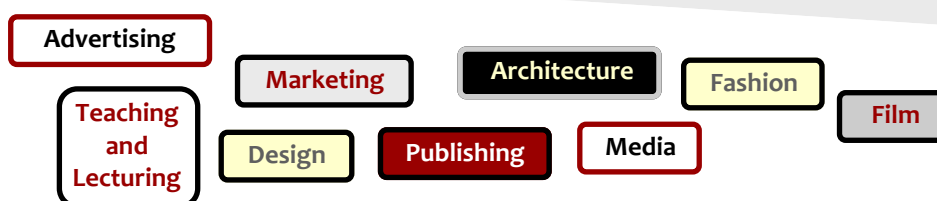

Progression Routes

This course is an exciting stepping stone to an exciting future.

There are many careers related to Fine Art.

Art and Design related work is the second largest money-earner for Britain after the retail industry.

Fine Art will give you an excellent grounding for multiple career opportunities including:

Every year students who study Fine Art go on to study for design-related degrees.

The skills and knowledge you will gain through the study of Fine Art along with the enrichment activities that are available to you are valued in many careers. The study of Fine Art can help you to develop transferable skills that would be of use in any career or job.

“Choose Fine Art because it gives you the opportunity to be truly creative. The art rooms provide excellent facilities to experiment with a wide range of different mediums and the teachers nurture our ideas and skills.”

- former student